The Japanese Society for Non-Destructive Inspection (JSNDI) has published various textbooks for those people wishing to master nondestructive testing technologies. The series of textbooks on these technologies has been edited so that the textbooks can be used for self-study by those wishing to qualify as nondestructive testing (NDT) personnel.

In society NDT personnel must conduct actual nondestructive testing with sufficient knowledge and experiences suitable for the level of technology required. This publication conforms to the level of knowledge required for NDT personnel based on JIS Z 2305 “Non-destructive testing - Qualification and certification of NDT personnel.” It has been edited so that those wishing to learn about nondestructive testing can easily understand the basic knowledge and work related to nondestructive testing. It is useful for those intending to be qualified as Level 1 NDT personnel to learn the necessary knowledge and technologies.

Thirteen years have passed since the 2004 edition “Penetrant Testing I” was published. For this revised version we reviewed the contents in line with the progress of NDT technologies and updates to related standards during the intervening period.

We hope this publication will be helpful and used by many personnel who want to master penetrant testing technologies.
